Why each answer works

- 1. Answer: B. The discovery creates an expectation of useful evidence, but the letters lack the desired information. However signals this contrast.
- 2. Answer: A. The oyster reef is a particular example of the general claim about organisms altering flow.
- 3. Answer: C. The second sentence adds another advantage. It does not follow causally from greater energy storage.
- 4. Answer: A. Road damage caused the rerouting, so use a cause-and-effect transition.
- 5. Answer: B. The text describes successive steps in a procedure. Next marks the following step.
- 6. Answer: A. The second sentence restates and explains what uncertain provenance means.
- 7. Answer: B. The second sentence qualifies the expectation that remoteness eliminates light pollution. Nonetheless expresses that contrast.
- 8. Answer: B. The result repeatedly recurred, rather than becoming larger or occurring only once after a delay.
- 9. Answer: A. In fact introduces evidence correcting the preceding claim. The records contradict immediate universal adoption rather than add a similar case or an effect.
- 10. Answer: A. Some weathering confirms a reasonable expectation; the rest of the sentence qualifies its extent. Instead would falsely suggest that weathering replaced expected damage as a contrasting event.
